He continued Huntington should not forget in to grow better as we gave him the Sarsapar his passion that Gage had been too true a friend to the company and plished such wonderful results, I recommend himself to be turned out at this Itall I possibly can." JEROME M. SLEEFER, late day. This declaration induced Huntington to talk plainly, and he told his associate that, as he owned a larger interest in the road than he did, he had a right to demand a larger representation.

At this juncture Colonel Crocker suggested a compromise, which came to light last Wednesday, when Ariel Lathrop, Stanford's brotherin-law, was put out and Attorney Hubbard put in his place. Huntington was not given an increased representation, but the Stanford representation was lessened, Mrs. Searies getting the benefit of the change.

Huntington also insisted that Stanford should so conduct his political duties as to prevent the Fourth and Townsend street offices from being a regular rendezvous for politicians.

While there can be no doubt that Senator Stanford is a friend of the masses, and is spending his vast accumulations in the interest of the rising generation, if Huntthe road out of politics is sincere the people will rejoice.

It is possible that some concessions will have to be made; that a clause may be admitted to guard contracts already made and compel them to be payable in gold. We think such a clause would be a good thing, as it would quiet the apprehensions of men to whom large sums are due payable in gold, and it would amount to the same thing within a year, because so soon as the law is passed it will cause the absorption of all the silver that our mines produce. Silver will advance so rapidly in price and with it all other products of industry that it will in a few months take its old place beside Commercial Row, Reno, Nevada. gold and there will never be another gold shrieker heard from in DVelng America.

THE BOARD OF TRADE.

At a meeting of the State Board of Trade held Saturday Hon. T. H. Wel's was named as a member of the Board of Directors from the Nye county Board.

In relation to the petition from residents of Humboldt county to the Board to use its influence to get the Southern Pacific Company to give a special rate on seed and seed potatoes, the Secretary reported that he both wrote and interviewed General Traffic Manager Gray of the Southern Pacific Company, and that gentleman asked for information as to the quantity, etc., desired, which the Secretary could not give. He promised Mr. Gray to write to Humboldt county and get the desired information, and did so, but he had not heard from his letter.

The President and Secretary were also instructed to write to the Directors of the Donner Boom Company of San Francisco and see if the gates of the Tahce dam could not be closed. The following is a copy of the letter

Reso, Nev., April 2, 1890. To the Directors of the Donner Boom and Lumber Co., San Fran-cisco, Cal.—Dear Sirs: We are informed that the gates owned by your company at the outlet of Lake Tahoe open and water which would be of great value at a later date to all interests on the river is running to waste. The lake has risen about 31 inches up to date, although the gates have been closed all winter, but is still 40 inches below the capacity of your dam, and we know of no reason for doubting its safety when full. Parties who have extended their wharves fur-ther into the lake than they ever were before during the low water of the past two years, have expressed a fear that if the gates are kept closed they may be damaged, but there certainly can be no loss that will compare with the benefits to be gained from holding back the water, and no legal rights can be endangered until the line laid down by the U. S. surveys is reached. It must benefit the lumber men, the different factories using water as power and all the farmers along the river. The Nevada State Board of Trade, acting through its Directors, at their regular meeting, most urgently request that this important subject be given the attention it deserves from your company, as concerning the prosperity that you cause the gates to be so man-aged as to save all the water that can be stored consistent with safety to property and the rights of other water users. Respectfully, Wm. Thompson, Vice-President. ALLEN C. BRAGO, Secretary. By order of the Board of Directors. The Manager was instructed to spend $111 50 for advertising Nevada re-

RENO'S SWEET SINGER.

Miss Flora Finlayson a Songstress

A lady from Reno who is now in San Francisco, writes the following about Miss Flora Finlayson, with the Bostonians at the Baldwin: "Well, Flo has 'debuted' at last, and made a good impression, though her part gave her no opportunity to show her voice, Mignon' being an opera for two star sopranos. But she looked very handsome in her gay clothes (by all odds, the prettiest woman on the stage, and that is saying a good deal), and was graceful and at home. Twenty of the Nevadans sat in a gang, and, of course, we were all disappointed that we did not hear more of her voice.'

The Chronicle says of her: Miss Flora Finlayson, a young Nevada songstress, made her first appearance as Frederic, a young gallant worship-ing at fickle Felina's shrine. She has a good, clear young voice, and her opening number, the familiar air, "Here Am I in Beauty's Room," gave her a nice opportunity to display her powers. This she did, singing the light, catching air with taste and deli-cacy. Miss Finlayson's experience on the stage is only of a few months' standing, and she certainly gives much promise of a successful career

The GAZETTE extends its congratulations to Miss Finlayson, and hopes to record for her a brilliant operatic success in the near future.

It really doesn't need any. Its mission is not to rack the emotions or harrow the soul, but it has been called for the higher work of making us forget that pain or sorrow belonging to our estate. Its mo-tive is to captivate the ear, to delight the eye and make the heart glad with mirthful musings, and that this object of its being was accomplished last night was abundantly proven by the evident delight of the audience. "Zig Zag" is delight of the audience. "Zig Zag" is certainly entitled to rank at the very front and head of its class. Its music is fresh and of a much higher order than usual. ABOUT THE NORTHWEST.

That Contains Many Truths.

Just now there is a good deal heard and said about the "northern country." The resources of the new States of Montana and Washington are so continually harped upon that people are beginning to look upon that regio The Record says the population of as a new El Dorado. There is no denying that there is a mild "Washngton fever" prevalent in Reno. Some of our old and solid citizens contemplate leaving us and casting their lot in some of the new towns of the Pacific Northwest. To such the GAZETTE would say, "Look before you leap." It is an easy matter to make a serious mistake and materially worse your condition by leaving a town that has demonstrated its stability and capacity for steady growth and going to one whose only recommendation is newspaper reports, which caused by the falling of a stovepipe on may have been duly "inspired" by some railroad or real estate agent. There is no doubt the country alluded

"there is no place like home," and is returning to it, intending pilgrims to the mythical North will do well to read carefully what he has to say, as follows:

"My trip up north lasted three weeks, in which time I visited Port Townsend, Seattle, Tacoma, Fair-haven, Whatcom and Portland. The people all over that country are crazy over real estate, consequently property is held at an exorbitant figure and a great many new towns are springing up, and the real estate companies are booming them to the limit of the law. I had been told that Fairbaven was a town of 10,000 inhabitants, and was very much surprised when I got there to find that at the utmost there are not more than 1,500, probably not more than 1,000. Every other building in the main street is a real estate office—never saw so many of them in my life. They have just begun making the streets. Take lots three-quarters of a mile from a house on the line.

Elder B. F. Kittenger of Gettysburg, of the main street, and they ask for a 25-foot front from $1,200 up. Lots are for sale away out in the woods, where trees are as thick as fleas on a dog's back, but there is not $50 worth of timber on a $1,200 lot. The same may be said of Port Townsend, although there are about 6,000 people there—for advertising purposes, 20.000. The reports one hears from there are terribly exaggrated. I think times will ribly exaggerated. I think times will

For a little room just large enough to hold a bed, in Fairhaven, you have to pay $1 a night, and rooms are pretty dear all through here. There is no trouble about a laboring man getting work, but wages are lower than in Peno and living much higher. USEFUL INFORMATION.

filbury Fox, M. D., the eminent medical writer, in his work " Skin Diseases," thus ac counts for the pimples so common to the face and neck. Eating too rich or too greasy food, or too hearty eating while the ex-cretory organs are sluggish, causes in most people indigestion or a dyspepsial condition which causes the blood to move singuishly and enfeebles the pores. The result is, that the exuding secretions block in the pores, which inflame, each distinct inflam being a pimple. Dr. Pox therefore does no prescribe "blood purifiers" so called, but a dyspepsia cure" to be taken, to use his ow words "till the dyspensial symptoms have disappeared." The old idea was, that face ons were caused by a " humor in the blood," for which they treate the blood, giving the mineral, potash. Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla follows the modern ideas of Dr. Fox, and aims with gentle vegetable altera-tives at the stomach and digestive organs The reason is apparent why it cures dyspep sis and indigestion, and the pimples skin eruptions which result therefrom

I'D LIKE TO TRY.

If I had gold might it not be
A useless burden and a care?
And might it not convey to me
A sense of sorrow and despair?
Tis possible wenith would not suell
The happiness of such as I;
I might not piay the rich man well,
But yet I wouldn't mind to try. If some day fame should hunt me up

And sing my praises everywhere,
Would joy or corrow fill my cup,
Would skies be over ast or fair?
Would I not faint to see my name
In burning letters placed on high?
I'm modest, quite, but just the same
I'feel as though I'd like to try.

If some fair maid should all her love Upon my ionely heart bestow, As gentle stars that thine above Look down upon the earth below, Would life perfection seem to me, Or would I sometimes a dly sigh From wedded bondage to be free? Well, anyhow, I'd like to try.

-Chicago Herald. AN OLD RIVER GAMBLER.

Incidents in the Life of "Daddy' Reagan, the Sport

Fortunes Won at Cards and Lost in Spec ulation-He Fought for a Girl Who Became His Wife-Hor Sad End.

The members of the sporting fraternity in St. Louis have already raised a large sum of money towards a monument to "Daddy" Reagan. When he died in a hospital recently the career, of one of the most famous American gamblers came to an end.

Sam B. Reagan was born in Russell-ville, Ky., sixty-two years ago. His father was a clergyman and was prominent in his section. Sam was the oldest son and was well educated for a boy of those days in that somewhat unsettled region. His father was a man of some wealth, and among his possessions were several thoroughbred Kentucky horses. In these animals Sam found his greatest delight, and as a boy he soon became a clever horseman and noted throughout the vicinity as a daring rider and an expert judge of horseflesh.

It was but natural that his taste should turn towards the turf, and before he was out of his teens he had adopted the life of a professional turfman. Shrewd at a bargain, he is said to have made several thousand dollars with the few horses he owned before he had attained his majority. But bad luck came to him soon after and he was soon seen at the gaming-tables. When twenty-two years old he linked his fate as a gambler with an old professional named Morton. He and Morton ran up and down on the Mississippi river steamers, occasionally getting over on the Red river boats, and many adventures befell "Dad" during all those years. Back in 1852 "Dad" came to St. Joseph, then the gateway to the Far West.

The first story told of "Dad" is of a game of poker he had with a man named Edgeton, a "fly" gambler, on the steamer La Belle Creole while on a run to New Orleans. "Dad" was a "square sport." He never stooped to trickery, while the man Edgeton was directly the opposite in his methods of play. There geton and "Dad" had dropped out. The amount of money in the pot is not stated, but it was sufficient to excite both men. "Dad" had a full hand, and kept raising each raise made by his opponent, who sat opposite to him. There was a call, and "Dad" lay down his hand, while Edgeton dropped four aces on the table, and started to rake in the pot. As he did so, a fifth ace was exposed in his left hand. Quick as a flash "Dad" whipped a revolver from his pocket and, firing, knocked the illegitimate piece of pasteboard from the gambler's hand. Then discharging his Colt's revolver twice in rapid succession, he pierced both of Edgeton's ears an old-fashioned pistol and fired, the ball grazing "Dad's" brow and injuring him seriously. He reached over the table, and taking the money and chips, put the winnings into his pocket and then fell to the floor of the cabin un-

In 1858, on the Crescent City, a planter named Ross, living near Knoxville, Tenn., was on his way up the river from New Orleans, where he had been selling some of his products. He had with him between $18,000 and $20,000 in cash, and got into a game with "Dad." Ross had been drinking heavily and was in no condition to play the cards. He was reckless and ready to bet his pile on a pair of deuces. But such men were considered the legitimate prey of the river gamblers, and "Dad" was not reluctant in pulling in the shekels of the inebriated planter. In an hour's time "Dad" had every cent of the $20,000, and then Ross realized what he had done. There was no getting the money back. On the steamers money won at poker was as-square as money made by the legal sale of property. Ross arose from the ta-ble, his eyes bloodshot and his face hage gard.

"Well, old man," said he, "you have now every cent I have in the world, and I have a wife, a mother and several children. That money was to pay off the debt on my plantation, but it is gone and they must starve. But you won it square and I'm not kicking. Say goodbye to them for me;" and as he said these last words he put his hand around to his back pocket. "Dad" and others, divining his intention, sprang forward, but too late. A bullet had crashed through his skull and he sank down on the floor dead. "Dad" had his body taken to an undertaker's at Memphis and accompanied the corpse to the plantation. He attended the funeral, and Bill Harding—an old friend of "Dad's"—says, gave the widow every cent he had won from Ross. Then he went back to Memphis, caught the next toat and continued gaming.

It must have been about this time—

1858—that Reagan met the girl that he afterwards made his wife. Like all the other incidents of his life, it was a romantic meeting, courtship, marriage and parting. According to Bill Harding—and Bill is the only sport left who knows the story of "Dad's" life, he met the girl in this way: It was in a house in New Orleans that they first saw each other. She was a French girl—possibly a Creole—and was young and pretty. The night they met was her first night away from home. She could not have been more than twenty years of age, and Bill, who knew her, says he never saw

Bill, who knew her, says he never saw more monest, timid or beautiful woman in his life.

A man made an improper remark to her and the girl cried out in her shame and mortification. "Dad" sprang forward, and, knocking down the man who had his arms about her, stood to protect her from further insults. The man arose and he and his friends attacked. "Dad," and a desperate fight ensued from which Reagan emerged victorious, although suffering from a knife wound. That night he married her, and the next day they boarded a steamer and the next day they boarded a steamer and went up the river. "Dad" dolized her and she worshiped him. On the trip down, however, the parting came. They had a quarrel, and "Dad" cast aspersions regarding her character before he made her his wife. Broken-hearted, she ran to the side of the boat and threw herself into the river. Her body was found floating down the stream. On the fourth finger of the left hand was a plain gold ring, and it is this ring that "Dad," as he lingered between life and death in the hospital, twirled so constantly.

"The biggest game 'Dad' was ever in," said old Bill Harding, "was in St. Louis in 1869, when the old fellow carried away $35,000 in cash and checks and some $14,000 in I OU's and promissory notes. I don't know all about that sitting nor how he struck it so rich, but I do know that it was so. A number of the most preminent men in St. Louis were in the game, one of them named Greene, I believe, who was largely interested in the Granite Mountain Mines and very wealthy. One man, Smithers, I think, was his name, had paid 'Dad' a check for $6,000, and then had gone to the bank early in the morning, and stopped payment on it. When 'Dad' came to cash it, of course it was no good, and 'Dad' was mad. He went around to Smithers's office, and confronting him, tore the check into a hundred pieces and threw them into his face. Then reaching into his vest pocket he extracted five $100 bills, and cossing them on to Smithers' desk, exclaimed: 'Here, my poor man, take these and buy dinner;' and stalked out of the office. Smithers sent the bills back the next day, and 'Dad' gave them to a missionary society in St. Louis." -Back in the fifties "Dad" made St.

Joseph his headquarters. It was during the gold fever in California, and of course the city was filled with adventur-ous spirits. The one hotel—that is, of any pretensions—was the Pacific House, which is still standing, and this is perhaps one of the most famous hotels in the land to-day. On the second floor of the Pacific House "Dad" and a partner, named Cummings-"Deacon" Cummings he was called ran a gambling joint. Among "Dad's" patrons were two of the nost famous characters of early daysthe Thompson brothers -Colonel Broaddus Thompson and "Old Jeff" Thompson, or the Fire-Eating Tarantula, as he was often called. Jeff was the man who tore down the stars and stripes from the court-house there in '61, and when hedged in with his regiment by the Yankees wrote orders, like Na-poleon, in blank verse and doggerel. Colonel Broaddus and "Dad" were warm friends. Broaddus would borrow a few dollars from some one who didn't know him well, buy a drink for the crowd and then steer straight for 'Dad's' rooms, where the chances were he would lose every cent in a few minutes. It was Broaddus who first sprung the joke that has been attributed to Senator Vest. Senator Stewart and about every living statesman, and will be attributed to future public characters probably. Broaddus had been sitting in a game, lost all he had, and went down into the hotel office. His long beard was of a delicate ecru color, being saturated with tobacco-juice. A friend said to him:

"Colonel, how did you get all that tobacco-juice on your beard?" "By expectoration, sir; by expectors-

"And was it necessary to expectorate in your whiskers?" Yes, sir, it was. "

"Could you not have spit in the cuspa-

"No, sir. I did not dare turn my head long-enough in that game, sir." "Dad" was a very nervy man and strong as a lion. In those days there was a notorious character called "Platte Purchase Pete." He was born and raised in this section of Missourt, and was a typical Western terror. He was a terror simply because he had ab-normally well-developed vocal organs, and no one dared to dispute his right to the title of reigning terror of St. Joe until he ran up against "Dad." A game was in progress one night and "Platte Purchase Pete" walked into the rooms and began to create a disturbance. The players paid little attention to him, and this irritated Pete. Walking up to "Dad," he reached down and, taking up the pile of chips that stood before the veteran gambler, stepped back a few paces and hurled them at him. "Dad" laid down the cards which he was deal-ing, and slowly walking up to Pete, grasped him by the back of the neck and ran him towards the window. Lifting the six-foot terror, he opened the window and dropped him out. The fall was probably sixteen feet, and a broken leg was the result. Pete was so morti-fied by this disgrace that as soon as he recovered from the effects of the fall he tarted West and never returned.

"Dad" visited Asia, South America and Mexico. In '72 he came back to St. Joseph and proved himself to be worth 305,000. He invested heavily in Kansas and Nebraska lands, but his investments and Nebraska lands, but his investments proved disastrous. He tried to found a town in Kansas, but chose a poor site and lost money. In '78 he left again, but usme back in '80 and opened a hig saleon—the handsomest in the Southwest. He put every cent he had into this place, but it was no go and he was left simost a beggar. Bad luck claimed him then and never relinquished its hold.

When old Daddy died, about the last human relic of the early river days passed away. N. Y. World.

A Pioneer's Experience With Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I am a pioneer in this county, having been here 30 years, Four years ago my little son Eliery became blood-poisoned by impure virus in vaccination. His arm swelled terribly, causing great agony; physicians said the arm must be amputated, and even then his recovery would be doubtful. Ope day I read about a blood purifier, new to me, and was surplied to learn that it was prepared by C. I. serpised to learn that it was prepared by C. I. Hood, with whom I used to go to school in Chelsea, Vt. I decided to have my boy try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and was much gratified when it seemed to help him. He continued be grew better as we gave him the Sarsapar-file, and having used 8 bottles is now entirely sured. As Hood's Sarsapar-plished such wonderful results, I recommends tall I positily can', JEROME M. BLEEFER, Upper Lake, Lake Co., Cal.
